Marines Mark 188th Anniversary Today

Members of the United States Marine Corps will pause today to observe the 188th birthday of the corps. Nov. 10, 1775, the Second Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia, authorized the formation of two battalions of Marines.

To be accepted in the new corps, recruits had to have suitable clothing to endure a long campaign, a musket, and sufficient knowledge of the sea to be useful member of the ship's crew. The requirements have changed considerably.

Today's Marine uses a standard military rifle. He is just as likely to be an expert in jet aircraft, guided missile maintenance, or electronic communications.

The Corps is required to maintain three divisions and three aircraft wings, ready to go anywhere in the world on a moment's notice. They stand ready to guard freedom in Viet Nam, West Berlin, or as part of the United Nations command in the Congo.

Local men who may be interested in becoming a member of the Corps are invited to call Sgt. Sam Zavodny at the Torrance Recruiting Office. The office is located at 2165 Torrance Blvd., and may be reached by calling FA 8-2330.
